

CODE Health Announces Water Crystal Analysis Results

Conducted By The Emoto Institute

CODE Health, a pioneer in information medicine and bioenergetic therapeutics, announced today that two of its ten formulas within the CODE Kit: BALANCE (Cellular Health Formula) and CALM (Healthy Mind Formula), were evaluated using water crystal analysis developed by the Emoto Institute in Japan.

Co-founded by Dr. Lisa Piper, PhD in Natural Medicine, and Wendy Cohn-Osborne, CODE Health is redefining wellness by shifting the focus from chemical intervention to information-based healing.

The Emoto Institute is internationally recognized for its work exploring the relationship between water quality, structure, and consciousness through water crystal photography. The methodology involves freezing water samples under controlled conditions and observing crystal formation as ice simultaneously melts and grows. Variations in crystal structure are understood to reflect differences in water quality, coherence, and informational integrity.

During analysis, both BALANCE and CALM produced visually harmonious, well-organized crystalline structures at freezing, a result associated with high-quality, coherent water.

A defining factor in these results is CODE Health's formulation itself. The only ingredient in all CODE formulas is medical-grade saline solution, which serves as a biologically compatible water-based carrier. Saline is an ideal medium due to its electrolyte composition, allowing it to receive, hold, and transmit subtle informational and energetic patterns. Through Quantum technology, these informational signatures are imprinted into the saline, creating a coherent carrier without the use of chemicals, botanicals, or synthetic compounds.

This evaluation demonstrates that the water-based carrier used in CODE formulas is pure, structured, and coherent, supporting CODE Health's foundational belief that the body responds to information before chemistry.

Unlike over the counter and prescription medications, which often rely on chemical compounds that may produce unwanted side effects, CODE formulas, which comprise The Modern Medicine Cabinet, offer a non-chemical alternative designed to support the body's innate intelligence. CODE products are safe for people and animals of all ages and sizes, making them accessible across generations and species.

"With the human body composed of approximately 70–80% water, the quality and coherence of that water matters," said founders Dr. Lisa Piper and Wendy Cohn-Osborne. "This study reinforces our mission to honor water as a living information system and to lead the next evolution of medicine, one rooted in energy, coherence, and consciousness."

Note: The results are shared for educational and exploratory purposes and further CODE Health's commitment to advancing global conversations around bioenergetic wellness and the future of medicine. Water crystal analysis is a visual and exploratory research method used to examine water quality and structure. These observations are shared for informational purposes only and are not intended to diagnose, treat, cure, or prevent any disease.
